

The Fund for an Inclusive California provided $1,595,000 in general operating support grants to 31 community-based organizations that are working to ensure that all Californians have dignified, well maintained, affordable homes that support their rootedness and belonging.

CENTRAL VALLEY (4)

California Rural Legal Assistance, Inc. – Unincorporated Community Justice Program*

California Center for Movement Legal Services*

Faith in the Valley

Power California*

INLAND REGION (9)

ACLU of Southern California

Congregations Organized for Prophetic Engagement

Just San Bernardino

Leadership Counsel for Justice and Accountability*

Pueblo Unido Community Development Center

Starting Over, Inc.

Time for Change Foundation

Training Occupational Development Educating Communities (TODEC) Legal Center

Warehouse Workers Resource Center*

LOS ANGELES (8)

ACT-LA*

Community Power Collective

Housing Movement Lab

InnerCity Struggle

Koreatown Immigrant Workers Alliance*
Long Beach Residents Empowered*
Social Justice Learning Institute
Strategic Actions for a Just Economy

BAY AREA (6)

East Bay Alliance for a Sustainable Economy*
Faith in Action Bay Area*
Housing Rights Committee of San Francisco*
North Bay Organizing Project*
Regional Tenant Organizing Network
Rising Juntos*

STATEWIDE (4)

ACCE Institute
HousingNow!
Homes for All California
Tenants Together*

received additional support to strategically adapt to the political moment.*

Strategic Adaptation Grants

The Fund for an Inclusive California increased its grantmaking in response to increasing political threats to low-income BIPOC communities. With these resources, 14 existing partner organizations received $405,000 to respond to threats and seize new possibilities emerging from this political reality.

1. California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA) - Unincorporated Community Justice Program

CRLA is a trusted partner to low-income immigrant families living in mobile home parks. Resources will support CRLA to work with residents in Merced and Tulare Counties to address habitability issues and work towards community ownership of the mobile home parks. CRLA has faced significant financial cuts this past year, imperilling their ability to maintain and grow their body of work focused on manufactured housing communities.

2. Power California

Power California has co-anchored a regional coalition in the San Joaquin Valley that has built alignment and coordination between several F4ICA core partners in the region. The coalition is poised to create a collective organizing plan for the next two election cycles, with a crucial opportunity to elect, educate and engage a new Fresno City Council on key housing policies this fall.

3. California Center for Movement Legal Services

Given the dearth of services during a time of escalating attacks on immigrants, California Center for Movement Legal Services is playing a critical role to expand legal resources for immigrants and tenants in the San Joaquin Valley. This organization demonstrates how partnerships with tenant basebuilding organizations like ACCE Institute lead to victories for low-income tenants. It is this collaborative approach that is especially exciting as the Center's reach expands to more areas in the state.

4. Tenants Together

Tenants Together is a critical statewide convener of local tenant organizations. These Strategic Adaptation resources are intended to bolster the network as it has faced unpredictable losses in public and philanthropic support. Additionally, resources will support Tenants Together and its member organizations to convene safely in Fresno in 2026 and strengthen the organizing capacity of the San Joaquin Valley.

5. Leadership Counsel for Justice and Accountability (Leadership Counsel)

Leadership Counsel for Justice and Accountability is working to protect its community-informed wins codified in Riverside County's 6th Cycle Housing Element. Additional resources will support the momentum of wins like AB 806, as Leadership Counsel for Justice and Accountability engages mobile home park residents in know-your-rights training. Leadership Counsel also co-anchors the Central Valley People's Housing Coalition, which has a crucial opportunity to educate and engage a new Fresno City Council on key housing policies this fall.

6. Warehouse Workers Resource Center

Warehouse Workers Resource Center is strengthening collaboration across southern California on multiple fronts and is calling attention to the impact of ICE raids on workers' housing security. Resources will support the coordinated response to heightened immigration enforcement across Riverside, San Bernardino and Los Angeles Counties, and calls attention to the impact of ICE raids on workers' housing security.

7. ACT-LA

Measure ULA represents a transformative, non-market housing solution that has set a model for the state of what a robust public revenue source can make possible. In response, housing justice organizers are facing intensified political and real-estate driven attacks in an attempt to weaken or dismantle this legislation that communities fought hard to win. Additional resources will support ACT-LA and its coalition partners to ensure that the social housing movement in Los Angeles is sustained and its visionary solutions are defended from political erosion.

8. Long Beach Residents Empowered (LiBRE)

LiBRE effectively engages local leaders and collaborates with fellow movement partners to advance policies that have a material effect on Long Beach residents. Additional resources will support LiBRE's collaboration with Los Angeles Alliance for a New Economy to lay the groundwork for a local ballot measure that would generate revenue for housing production, preservation, outreach and education, alongside other social services.

9. Koreatown Immigrant Workers Alliance (KIWA)

KIWA is a strong collaborator that brings the perspectives and leadership of immigrant renters and workers to every coalition table. Recently, KIWA has taken on additional work to make sure their members are trained to defend democracy and respond to new threats around immigration enforcement and climate disasters.

10. Housing Rights Committee of San Francisco (HRCSF)

Additional resources will support HRCSF's deepened investment in member leaders so that they can fully engage in networks like Homes for All-California. HRC SF will adapt critical tools like their political education curriculum to include and train members on how to respond to current political conditions. By linking housing justice and economic redistribution to anti-authoritarian resistance, support for HR SF's strengthened infrastructure has the opportunity to yield lessons that can be shared with the broader housing justice movement.

11. Rising Juntos

Additional resources will support Rising Juntos to collaborate with ACCE Action to advance a ballot initiative for the upcoming 2026 election. This ballot initiative seeks to establish safeguards for renters in San Pablo, a city where two-thirds of all renters are rent burdened.

12. East Bay Alliance for a Sustainable Economy (EBASE)

Facing greater political threats, EBASE's organizing and coalition building has adapted to meet these challenges while continuing to build the leadership, solidarity, coalitions and partnerships needed for long-term advances toward housing justice. Additional resources will support EBASE's efforts to integrate immigrant rights and communities of care into organizing Latinx and immigrant communities.

13. Faith in Action Bay Area (for the Action Fund)

Faith in Action Fund is bringing forth a ballot measure for the 2026 election. If successful, the ballot measure would enact rent control in Redwood City and would be the first of its kind in San Mateo County. The success of this campaign has the potential to inspire similar protections in neighboring cities.

14. North Bay Organizing Project

North Bay Organizing Project is responding to an increase in immigration enforcement by preparing Sonoma County tenants associations with know-your-rights training and by creating novel models of building-wide or mobile home park-wide responses.